

Professional Wildlife Biologist Search – February 2023

Background: Nature's Capital, LLC is a small business located in Boise, Idaho. Our mission is to assist clients throughout the Pacific Northwest in the maintenance and enhancement of natural capital assets found in biological and physical resources. We seek to partner with professional wildlife biologist individuals, small business firms, or corporate entities with capacity for wildlife field surveys or related environmental analyses within the Pacific Northwest.

Description: Nature's Capital, LLC is searching for professional wildlife biologist individuals or firms to augment our wildlife biology capacity in field and analysis projects. Business relations would be established either through project-specific contracts or direct-hire (intermittent) employment. Work activities will include, for example, broadcast surveys for nocturnal owls, surveys and assessments of habitat for management indicator species, breeding bird point counts, butterfly population census, surveys for terrestrial reptiles and mollusks, or analysis of proposed project effects on special status wildlife species.

Target Qualifications and Experience: Individuals and firms should have demonstrated experience in conducting Federally mandated species survey protocols (e.g., for northern spotted owl, marbled murrelet, northern goshawk, or terrestrial mollusk species), completing necessary documentation for compliance with the Endanger Species Act and National Environmental Policy Act, and participation in interdisciplinary teams. Past performance should demonstrate knowledge of Pacific Northwest region fauna and ability to complete tasks outlined in the description above.

Contact: We look forward to contacting professional individuals or firms interested in partnering on business opportunities accessed through a USDA Forest Service long-term purchase agreement. To express interest or ask for more information, please contact Nature's Capital at 208-344-0388 or srust@naturecap.com.
